The Asbury Revival

Many have contacted DSM asking if I’ve heard about the Asbury Revival and, if so, do I think it is the beginning of what I saw in a vision the week of 9/11/01. (I shared the vision on Flashpoint a couple of weeks ago.) I started hearing about this outpouring almost immediately, and I do believe it could be the beginning of what I saw.

I have been very excited about what I’m seeing and hearing in this revival: ongoing worship and passion for Christ led by the students; heartfelt contrition and repentance of sin; the obvious lingering presence of Holy Spirit; grassroots-led versus initiated and controlled by individuals; such hunger for His presence that classes are canceled - these characteristics all describe what I saw in the vision.

Many videos and first-hand reports are circulating online. People are beginning to travel from elsewhere to experience what is occurring at Asbury. As of yesterday, 22 colleges had sent groups of their students to the Asbury campus, believing for an impartation. The following report is from a seminary professor who visited the meeting:

“two things stood out to me. First, there was a noticeable lack of tension in my body. I was completely relaxed. There was also a complete lack of mental tension or distraction. My mind was at utter peace. And I had only been there for ten minutes.

“The second thing I recall thinking is that I could sit here in this chair forever. The desire to linger indefinitely was quite unexpected. I had planned to pop in for a few minutes before returning to work. Suddenly, work was the farthest thing from my mind.

“I wound up staying for well over an hour. In the time that I was there, I could not get over certain distinctive qualities about the atmosphere. The words that came to mind were: gentle, sweet, peaceful, serene, tender, still. Some people were singing. Others were talking. Many were praying. But there was something like a blessed stillness permeating the place. No one was swinging from the chandeliers. [Extreme emotional manifestations] In fact, it was right the opposite. What made this so wild was just how un-wild the whole thing was is.

“the peacefulness in that place is so palpable that [the first] ten minutes had made an impression that will last the remainder of my lifetime. (1)

This and other reports are incredibly encouraging. Jim Garlow shared these exciting first-hand reports from others:

"I'm in Hughes now. It's getting deeper and wider!"

“Another report: ‘More are arriving. WORSHIP!!’

“A third person: ‘There's an uproar coming from Hughes tonight. A TANGIBLE thickness is present, and there is a weight in the air. People keep pouring in.’

“Also, I was just told a busload of students from Indiana Wesleyan University is on the way. And was just told that the Asbury revival has now impacted campus number 2: Ohio Christian University.” (2)

There can be no doubt that this is a move of the Holy Spirit. It seems there is a well of revival at Asbury which Holy Spirit keeps reopening. The following article shares some of Asbury’s revival history:
