The Cry for Wisdom Better Than Wealth

“Listen, one and all! Both rich and poor together, all over the world— everyone listen to what I have to say!

For wisdom will come from my mouth; words of insight and understanding will be heard from the musings of my heart.

I will break open mysteries with my music, and my song will release riddles solved.

There’s no reason to fear when troubling times come, even when you’re surrounded with problems and persecutors who chase at your heels.

They trust in their treasures and boast in their riches, yet not one of them, though rich as a king, could rescue his own brother from the guilt of his sins. No one could give God the ransom price for the soul of another, let alone for himself.

A soul’s redemption is too costly and precious for anyone to pay with earthly wealth. The price to pay is never enough to purchase eternal life for even one, to keep them out of hell.

The brightest and best, along with the foolish and senseless, God sees that they all will die one day, leaving their houses and wealth to others. Even though they name streets and lands after themselves, hoping to have their memory endure beyond the grave, becoming legends in their own minds, their home address is now the cemetery!”

Psalms 49:1-11 TPT

Wisdom always calls out from the street corners, waiting to offer help to those who seek it. It speaks to the foolish, urging them to understand that trusting in the flesh brings no profit.

The folly of wealth is fleeting and wasteful; no one can take it to the grave. Not even the nakedness of your body is yours to own... nothing at all.
